Rep. May Says No Excuse For Kimmel, Short Failure To Collaborate.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House indicated today that further action concerning Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Lieut. Gen. Walter C. Short, blamed in the Roberts report for lack of American alertness against the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, will rest with Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of Navy Frank Knox.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—ANGRY demands came from congress members today for the expulsion of any "incompetents" holding responsible position in the war effort and for courts martial to mete out punishment on those responsible for the debacle of Pearl Harbor. A furor of rare bitterness on both sides of Capitol Hill followed the week-end report of a presidential investigating commission, blaming non-cooperation and "dereliction of duty" by Hawaii area commanders of the army and navy for success of the Japanese sneak attack on the great Pacific naval base.

5 Injured In Car Crashes, Train Mishap

Ashland Driver Hurt As Train Carries Car 500 Feet Down Tracks.

Although nearly a score of persons were killed in automobile accidents in Ohio over the week-end, the Mansfield area escaped with only eight minor crashes in which five persons suffered slight injuries.

Two vehicles overturned, a hit-skip driver's car struck down a 2 1/2-year-old boy and four collisions were reported.

H. E. Bland, Ashland, was the lucky motorist who escaped serious injury in a collision with a Pennsylvania railroad train late yesterday.

Police charged that Bland drove around a barricade at the end of East Third street on to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks where his car was hit by an eastbound freight.

The train pushed Bland's auto along the tracks for more than 500 feet, damaging it badly, but Bland received only cuts and bruises. He was treated at General hospital and upon arraignment in municipal court this morning on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, pleaded guilty and was fined $75 and costs.

American Tanker Venore Goes Down Off North Carolina; Hit By 2 Torpedoes.

NORWEGIAN BOAT LOST

Attacked 35 Miles Off Coast of U. S.; All 42 Members of Crew Rescued.

NORFOLK, Va.—An Axis undersea raider attacked the American tanker Venore off the North Carolina coast late Friday and 22 members of the crew are unaccounted for, the Fifth naval district announced today.

Twenty-one members of the crew were brought ashore last night at Norfolk.

The tanker, owned by the Ore Steamship company, was hit at least twice by torpedoes Friday and it sank in the Atlantic Saturday morning, the navy said.

The vessel was the seventh sunk and the eighth attacked by enemy submarines along the Atlantic seaboard in the past two weeks. One ship of the eight attacked was only damaged.

All members of the Venore's crew who were rescued have been landed here, the navy said.

First word of the attack upon the Venore came when her radio operator flashed a distress call and the ship's position. It read, in part:

"Two crashed so far. Will keep informed. Think swimming soon." The Venore was the second ship reported sunk off the Atlantic coast over the week-end, indicating a renewal of activity by Axis submarines, after a five-day period in which no attacks were reported.

Striking without warning, an enemy submarine sank the Norwegian tanker Varanger in a pre-dawn attack only 35 miles off the Atlantic coast yesterday, but the crew of 42 was saved.

Three torpedoes rammed the 9,300-ton motor ship within 12 minutes in the enemy's closest Atlantic coast attack on shipping but for the first time no lives were lost in Atlantic waters. The blast shook houses along the coast.

Fourth naval district headquarters at Philadelphia said apparently two enemy undersea craft engaged in the attack but added this was not confirmed.

The state defense council sent a letter to merchants today urging them to curtail home delivery services to conserve tires, gasoline and trucks. The letter suggested that customers should be required to carry packages whenever possible.

The council also suggested that home deliveries be made only three times a week, and that special deliveries to individual customers and deliveries on approval be stopped. Merchants were urged to salvage boxes and paper and were told that special gift wrappings may have to be eliminated.

Merchants were told that conservation now may enable them to continue essential services for a longer time.

Believe U. S., Dutch Successes In Great 4-Day Battle In Strait Of Macassar Have Blocked Plan To Invade Java.

(By Associated Press)
United States and Dutch sea and air forces, locked in a great, running battle with a Japanese invasion armada in the strait of Macassar, have sunk or damaged at least 27 transports and warships in the four days of fighting and may have shattered an attempt to invade Java, the heart of the united nations defense in the southwest Pacific.

The next few days will tell in what strength, if any, the Japanese armada was able to negotiate the narrow shortcut to the inner arc of the Netherlands East Indies.

The Japanese, however, won at least one foothold on this sea road to Java—the Dutch oil port of Balikpapan, on the strait-side of the island of Borneo, but the size of the invasion fleet indicated that Tokyo was shooting for higher stakes to the south.

The Strait of Macassar is the most direct route between Japanese concentration points in the Philippines and the rich island of Java and much of their armed strength.

Soerabaya, the great Dutch naval base, for example, lies less than 350 miles southwest of the southern mouth of the strait.

The score against the Japanese in the Macassar straits battle, as thus far reported in the communiqués from the Java headquarters, Batavia and Washington, follows:

Destroyed: Nine transports, one destroyer.
Damaged: A warship, unclassified as to type, five cruisers, two destroyers, nine transports.

The damaged ships, hit by bombs or torpedoes, include at least five transports probably sunk and a cruiser which may have gone down. The submarine which torpedoed it was so resisted that it was impossible for its command to determine the result of the hit.

The battle started on Thursday afternoon when Dutch airmen, roaring out from their jungle-

Bengasi in North Africa again was threatened today by Axis forces which had developed their "reconnaissance in force" of last week into a full-scale offensive.

The British admitted the main battle was now in the Zoulet Mts area, which meant they had been driven back 40 miles since yesterday and 145 miles from the westernmost point of their advance in the El Agheila area.

Zoulet Mts is only about 70 miles southeast of Bengasi which the British captured on Christmas day in their second Libyan offensive.

That the Axis itself was somewhat puzzled by its own success was indicated by a Rome spokesman who spoke of the Axis "improvised counter-attack" and said "it is not quite clear what has happened to the powerful British army. While it is true that the nature of the terrain in Cirenaica calls for long-range operations, this would not be a sufficient explanation for the retreat."

The Italian high command claimed huge losses had been inflicted, including the destruction or capture of 239 tanks and armored cars and 158 guns.

It was evident that the Germans and Italians were rushing heavy reinforcements and that the British may be in for an even more difficult time.

The Italians announced the arrival of another important convoy at Tripoli, despite heavy British bombing and torpedo attacks which were acknowledged to have sunk one large liner.

The Germans said Malta had been bombed heavily again, and (Continued on Page 3, Col. 5)

GEN. JOHNSON: Calls on Farmers for Patriotic Effort

Gen. Johnson

WASHINGTON—Know people who have been buying their bank accounts into the government? The answer will be: "Sure, we will pay you for them. It will be in paper money. The only difference is that it bears no interest at all and it has no greater security than your bond. Would you rather have government paper bearing no interest (currency) or your interest-bearing bonds?"

Nobody but a zanie could hesitate over that choice. For that reason there will be no selling of government securities below par. Of course the government cannot afford to have any new orgy of closing banks. Part of the security against that is also its almost unlimited power over the value of money and the privilege, already discussed, of making all the bonds held by the banks redeemable at par.

Thus a situation is already created where the hoarding of paper currency doesn't make sense. A safer and more thrifty way to use private money which is not immediately needed in business or other enterprise is to buy these government securities.

Nearly all the old dodges and escapes from inflation are closed and sealed. One was to buy real estate, commodities, or common stocks with the idea that, as the value of money declined, the price of these would go soaring. You could sell out at the peak and save your fortune in your profits. Now most commodities are subject to consumption, and "fair compensation" which must be paid is pretty likely to yield no great profit.

Furthermore, as to both common stocks and commodities, we are weaving a tax net around profits. If inordinate gains are made in this way the government is likely to take most or all of them. My conclusion from all this is that there are no clever little schemes to avoid the burden of this war and that the safest course to invest surplus money is in government securities.

UNITED NATIONS TO BE SUPPLIED SUGAR FROM U. S.

OPA Explains Program Which Limits Consumption To Pound Per Person.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Sugar will take a place beside guns, tanks and airplanes as an item to be supplied the United Nations, the office of price administration said today in explaining the forthcoming rationing of sugar.

The rationing program, to be put into effect within a few weeks, will cut household consumption of sugar to approximately one pound per person per week. Industrial use of sugar—soft drinks, canned foods, candy, etc.—will be cut approximately one-third.

Ration books, to be provided so that the regulations can be enforced, will be distributed next month. Final details of when, where and how these books will be distributed remain to be worked out.

In Ottawa, officials announced that sugar household use also will be rationed in Canada. Sales will be limited to three quarters of a pound per person per week but no card or ticket system will be introduced unless the public fails to cooperate. The rationing order will not affect restaurants in the dominion.

Retail outlets throughout the United States have been operating under an informal rationing plan during the last week.

It was revealed that the total sugar supplies available this year will be more than 2,000,000 tons less than last year because of the shutting off of the Philippine and Hawaiian sources.

Urge Use of Honey As Substitute

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Urging use of honey as a wartime sugar substitute, Ohio bee keepers today opened the 30th annual farmers' week, expected to attract some 10,000 persons to Ohio State university campus.

W. E. Dunham of the school's agricultural extension department said honey could be used advantageously in cooking and baking to augment sugar, slated for rationing early next month.

Because honey is sweeter than sugar, its use would not be more costly, Dunham said. He added that bakers now purchase it extensively and that ice cream manufacturers are considering it.

Ohio's annual honey production averages 25,000,000 pounds from some 30,000 apiaries. Ohio has ranked first among states in honey production four of the past seven years, said Dunham, secretary of the Ohio Bee Keepers' association.

"Both of them," he said, "are old structures and if struck, would probably collapse on the youngsters. We'll have to find a nearby refuge and map plans to move classes there when the alarm sounds."

HUNT LEADERS OF LYNCH MOB

Authorities Guard Against Rioting After Missouri Prisoner Is Killed.

(By International News Service) SIKESTON, Mo.—Authorities met today to learn the identity of the ring leaders of a mob that broke into the city jail, removed a wounded Negro accused of stabbing a white woman and lynched him.

It was believed the man, Cleo Wright, 26, a cotton mill worker, died while the mob dragged him for ten blocks behind an automobile before he was burned with gasoline.

Sixteen highway patrolmen were stationed in the Negro quarter to prevent possible rioting, and American Legionnaires patrolled the streets leading into the area.

Thus far, none of the mob leaders has been identified. Wright was accused of entering the home of Mrs. Grace Sturgeon, 29, the wife of Sgt. Dillard Sturgeon, a member of the regular army, and stabbing her in an attempted criminal assault. She was reported in a serious condition at the Sikeston General hospital.

The attack was witnessed by Mrs. Sturgeon's 8-year-old son, James, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Sturgeon.

The Negro was arrested on suspicion several blocks away by Policeman Hess Perrigan who said he found a bloody knife in Wright's possession. Perrigan said that, while on the way to the jail, Wright attacked him and he drew his revolver and wounded the man.

WICKARD SAYS PRICES CAN'T BE BIG MOTIVE

Secretary Points To Danger Confronting U. S. In His Report To Roosevelt.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard called on farmers today to make patriotism rather than prices their big motive for participating in agriculture's war-time job of producing abundant food.

"Producing foods for our own immediate use in warfare, as well as for use of our allies, summons every patriotic citizen to a greater unselfish effort."

"There can be no question," the secretary added, "of making the price the chief incentive. First among the driving forces is awareness of the nation's danger and of the fact that the ultimate reward is victory or nothing."

This call for patriotic effort was made by Secretary Wickard in his annual report to President Roosevelt. Much of the document dwelt on the question of farm prices, a subject now under consideration by congress in connection with price control legislation.

Although the report was prepared before Pearl Harbor, Wickard said in a postscript that nothing in it needed to be changed.

As for farm prices, he said he continued to adhere to the parity principle for farm prices first established in the AAA act of 1933. "Efforts to put prices above parity," he said, "may endanger the parity principle itself. The national farm program, with its commodity loans and its parity and conservation payments, has had the full support up to now of the general public and of consumers. This is because it has been fair."

The secretary warned that efforts to raise farm prices out of line with other prices might prove disastrous.

He held, however, that there was a "practically practical and obvious reason" for stipulating that no price ceilings should be imposed on farm products at strict parity. Price control legislation now pending before congress would permit no ceilings at less than 110 per cent of parity.

"If ceilings were placed exactly at parity," he said, "the daily fluctuations in the market would necessarily all be between parity and some lower figure, and as a result, farmers could not possibly average parity."

Wickard said many farmers remembered the surpluses and farm price collapse that followed the first World War and feared a similar aftermath for the present conflict.

He said that they should recognize that the situation was different now. In the first place, it is a case of having to produce abundantly to help defeat Hitler, or run the risk of losing everything, he said.

In the second place, he continued, the national farm program "is strong enough to meet the strains of the new post-war period, and to keep the production program well in hand."

Nothing Wrong, Specialists Say Of Frailest Quin

NORTH BAY, Ont.—(INS)—Marie, frailest of the Dionne quintuplets, continued to frolic and play with her famous sisters today after two specialists had prodded and poked her for two hours and decided "there was nothing seriously wrong."

The specialists examined Marie after Dr. J. J. Joyal, the Dionne family physician, had suggested she might be the victim of a muscular atrophy.

Dr. John Laing McDonald, orthopedic surgeon, and Dr. R. X. Amyot made a thorough examination and while they issued no official report Dr. Joyal said the "examination showed that there is no organic lesion."

The formal report of the specialists will be made to Premier Mitchell Hepburn on Ontario, Dr. Allan Roy Daffoe, official physician for the quintuplets, also was present at the examination.

Marie has been skating and taking her regular place in the activities of the quintuplets.

The other quintuplets were tremendously interested in the attention showered on Marie by the specialists and in fact appeared downright envious until they were asked to take off their shoes and stockings and stand in line with Marie so their feet and legs could be compared.

SPEED THE WAR WATCHWORD FOR 1942 IN OHIO

Industry Turns to Production
Of War Goods; Civilians Rally For Defense.

(By Associated Press)
Speed is the war watchword for 1942 in Ohio:

(1) In transforming its industry for the production of unprecedented quantities of war materials;

(2) In spurring its civilian defenses into readiness for any emergency.

Since Dec. 7, and while Ohioans in uniform were giving a good account of themselves on the Pacific front, the schedules for industry and civilian protection have gained resemblance to the course of a plane taking off from the runway for a steep climb.

The president's goal of reaching a production level during the next fiscal year, which begins July 1, equivalent to half the nation's income will be particularly applicable to Ohio.
This state is virtually a cross section of the nation, being both industrial and agricultural, capable of producing guns and butter.

Ohio's direct government contracts and allocations are estimated at one and one-half to two billion dollars, with sub-contracts running several times that figure. To keep the national pace, the state's output of war materials must be more than tripled.

Everything from ships to sealing wax already is being produced here. Ohio is the foremost machine tool state, a major steel producer, and contributes parts to every war plane built in America.

Its principal armament plants constructed in 1941 will reach capacity production in the coming year, and two more munitions works are on the way.

The Kings Mills ordnance plant will be located in Warren county and will make small arms ammunition. The construction contract has been let for the ammonia works in Lawrence county.

Shortly after war had been declared, a bombardment training center was allocated for a site near Columbus and a Ross county area was definitely marked as an army camp site for future development when funds are provided.

In the year ahead the following will step up their output to capacity: the Ravenna shell-loading plant, which began operations last August; the Wright engine plant near Cincinnati, which produced its first parts last April and its first complete engine in June; the Curtiss-Wright factory in Columbus, which began turning out plane sections in June and produced its first complete plane a month ago; the Canton naval ordnance plant, which started making gun parts in June, and the Flum Brook TNT and DNT works, which began production in June.

ing grounds near Port Clinton has

NOTED MANSION
LOSES PRESTIGE

Former Showplace of South
To Be Operated as Boarding House.

(By United Press)
MEMPHIS, Tenn.—The once-magnificent Church mansion, which cost more than $15,000 to build in the days when that sum would put up quite a house, and which ranked with the best, has been sold to Dave Williams, Negro, for $4,250.

Time was when the two-story brown frame house with 13 rooms was one of Memphis's show places.
It was there that Robert R. (Bob) Church, Jr., was born some 55 years ago.

In this house, with its crystal chandeliers and mahogany mantels, some of the leading Republican politicians of the nation were entertained.

The late Bob Church, sr., former slave, came to Memphis, the day President Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, 78 years ago. He made money, bought property, and became a millionaire.

Polished, suave, almost as fair of skin as a white man, Bob Church, Jr., became a national figure in Republican politics. More than one white man of Memphis went to him for a job when Republicans were in power and Church dispensed patronage. He was credited with putting Harry S. New into the Coolidge cabinet as postmaster general.

Church was involved in bitter fights with the "Lily Whites" of Shelby county (Memphis) Republican forces. He was seated at the Chicago Republican convention in 1928 after a hard fight.

After that, things didn't go so well with Church in Memphis.
Much of his wealth was tied up in property in the red light or two-light district of Memphis. Assessments on the property were high, and when revenue from the property went down, the assessments remained high. Church lost political favor locally. Gradually, the city took over Church's property, for taxes. The home place was the last to go.

Church left Memphis, and is reported to be living in Washington. His swank real estate office on Beale street is now occupied by the Atlanta Life Insurance Co., and managed by Lieut. George W.
Lee, once Church's right hand man in politics.

Williams plans to operate the once-famous mansion as a boarding house.

HAWAII REPORT STIRS DEMANDS FOR SHAKE-UP

Rep. May Says No Excuse For Kimmel, Short Failure To Collaborate.

taries of state, war and navy as well as the army chief of staff and chief of naval operations had "fulfilled their obligations," some congress members professed to find fault with provisions made here for Hawaii's defense.

The five-man commission, headed by Associate Justice Owen J.
Roberts of the supreme court, reported to President Roosevelt that "errors of judgment" by Lieut.
Gen. Walter C. Short, commander of the army's Hawaiian department, and Admiral Kimmel, commander of the Pacific fleet and commander in chief of the whole fleet, "were the effective causes for the success of the attack."

It concluded that the two officers had shown "a lack of appreciation of the responsibilities vested in them," especially since each had been warned by his superiors in Washington that relations with Japan were critical. Both were relieved of their commands soon after the attack, pending the investigation.

No immediate word of contemplated action came from the White House or the army and navy departments. The departments could order Short and Kimmel to face a court martial, or President Roosevelt could dismiss them from the service for "dereliction of duty." They could be appeal to a court martial if the chief executive took that course.

Typical of congressional reaction was that of Chairman May (D-Calif.) of the house military committee who commented: "The warnings should have been enough to put those two gentlemen on the alert, yet they apparently failed to collaborate. I don't think they should be excused."

The investigating commission found that 10½ months before the attack—on Jan. 24, 1941—Secretary Knox suggested in a letter to Secretary Stimson that war with the Japanese might come and that the first move would be a "surprise attack upon the fleet or naval base at Pearl Harbor."

The commission's report related that Knox's letter was forwarded to Kimmel and Short with orders to make preparations. Additional messages emphasizing the peril of the Japanese situation, it continued, were sent to Kimmel or Short on Oct. 16, Nov. 24, Nov.
27, Dec. 3, Dec. 4 and Dec. 6.

The report said the army was supposed to set up an aircraft warning system and by Dec. 7 had mobile equipment in place at temporary locations. The equipment was operated, however, only from 4 to 7 a. m. each day.

After the Nov. 27 warning Kimmel had ordered that any Japanese subs found in the Oahu operating areas be attacked. Between 6:33 and 6:45 a. m. Dec. 7 a destroyer and airplane found and sank one. The naval base watch officer was advised at 7:12 a. m. and notified his chief of staff but no alert warnings were issued.
The attack on the base came at 7:55 a. m.

An army non-com learning to operate the aircraft detectors was on the job after the devices were shut down officially at 7
a. m. At 7:02 he detected a large flight of planes 130 miles northwest of Oahu and at 7:20 reported this to an inexperienced lieutenant. The lieutenant, assuming that U. S. planes might be in the area named, took no further action.

In its summing up the commission had this to say:
"There were deficiencies in personnel, weapons, equipment and facilities to maintain all the defenses on a war footing for extended periods of time, but these deficiencies should not have affected the decision of the responsible commanders as to the state of readiness to be prescribed."

Last night the conference took steps to prevent encroachment of foreign air lines in the western hemisphere. The recommendations to this end were aimed at Axis air transport lines which until recently have controlled much of the air travel in South America.

The conference urged the 21 republics to limit use of civilian and commercial planes and facilities to their own nationals and bona fide American companies.

Another proposal for suppression of radio communication between American nations and the Axis ran into opposition from several quarters and was referred back to a committee to be revamped.

Meanwhile, the conference was prepared to take up the question

Argentina, Chile and several other countries opposed the or-dealing with this matter might interfere with individual sovereignty of the republics.

AND NOW THEY WANT PENSIONS!

Report On Pearl Harbor Investigation

NOW that the story of what happened at Pearl Harbor Sunday morning, December 7, has been made a matter of public record, it appears that "errors of judgment," rather than "dereliction of duty," were mainly responsible for success of the Japanese surprise attack in Hawaii.

The report made Saturday by President Roosevelt's board of inquiry, headed by Justice Roberts, of the United States Supreme Court, provides a comprehensive record of occurrences leading up to and associated with the Pearl Harbor debacle and may be considered a fair and frank recital of causes and consequences.

Blame is placed squarely on Admiral Kimmel and Lieut. General Short, as commanding officers of the navy and army in the Hawaii area, but it is said of these officers that they "failed properly to evaluate the seriousness of the situation"—despite frequent warnings that a Japanese attack in the Pacific appeared imminent.

In failing to "properly evaluate the seriousness of the situation," Admiral Kimmel and General Short appear to have reflected what was at that time a too common American attribute and it is only because of the frightful loss of life and destruction of military equipment, for which their "errors of judgment" were responsible, that they are now made the objects of official and public censure.

Lackadaisical attitude of the Pearl Harbor commanders, reprehensible as it now appears, strongly reflects the inaction of the United States, during the past several years, in failing to take adequate defensive steps in the Pacific, shipping scrap metal to Japan, leaving Guam unfortified and Wake island with a pitifully insufficient defensive force, and adopting a picayunish policy in the face of General MacArthur's requests for funds to build up large enough army to protect the Philippines.

While the potentially powerful United States was lulled into complacency and weakened by internal dissension, bureaucratic incompetency and pacifist preachments, greatly underestimated Japanese military strength, augmented by shrewd and unscrupulous espionage system, was made ready for simultaneous attacks at a number of points in the Pacific.

It was specifically noted in the report that a contributing cause to success of the attack were governmental restrictions, such as that against wire-tapping, which prevented effective counter-espionage. This law against wire-tapping, which had been used to advantage by law enforcement agencies, was ruled out several years ago as not being in accord with the high principles of individual liberty accorded in the United States, and is in line with the freedom granted Japanese aliens on the west coast, and other foreign agents throughout the country, to carry on subversive activities without serious restraint, over a long period before the start of war.

Review of the Pearl Harbor disaster, necessitated by submission of the anxiously awaited report of the special investigating committee, could do no more than arouse futile regret unless it serves to awaken consciousness of all Americans to the enormity of the task that lies ahead for this country, and to make them understand that "errors of judgment" are as likely to turn out disastrously as intentional acts of disloyalty.

Pensions for Congressmen!

A MOVE in congress which should not go unnoticed by any citizen of the United States is one designed to set up a pension, or life-time income, for senators and representatives, upon retirement from public service.

Such a bill is moving closer to enactment than many people realize, ridiculous as the procedure may seem when everyone in the nation is being asked to make sacrifices in behalf of the war effort.

The liability heretofore involved in electing representatives and senators has extended to no more than the two or six years of their term, with privilege of renewal, if desired by a majority of the voters in state or district.

If election of a congressman or senator is to hereafter entail an obligation on the part of taxpayers to keep on paying all ex-congressmen and senators several thousand dollars a year as long as they live the liability will be greatly increased.

If ever there is justification for resort to a national referendum it would be in such an attempted money grab as this—and proponents of the Townsend plan may well propound the question, "If congressmen are entitled to a retirement pension, who isn't?"

Canada's Better Way

CONTAMINATION of streams is one of the worst national habits. It seems as if, to most Americans, a creek or river is primarily a handy place to throw stuff into. Hundreds of once lovely rivers are used as outlets for sewers. Even when they escape such desecration, they are likely to be defiled with rubbish and tin cans.

Canadians know better. A Canadian stream is nearly always beautiful to look at, with unspoiled trees and shrubs along its banks, and so clean that you can dip and drink its water. This is not merely in the distant forests and hills. It is the same in and near the cities. The rewards of such cleanliness and order are great.

Red for Blackout Lighting

A CURIOUS fact about illumination is given out by engineers of the war department. Deep red lights are found more satisfactory than blue lights under blackout conditions. Such a red is less visible from the air than blue, gives you better illumination on the ground and helps in adapting the eyes to near or total darkness.

Nevertheless it is hard to adapt this discovery to practical use, because red lights have generally been used for danger signs rather than helpful illumination. For adaptation to blackouts it would be necessary to differentiate danger shades of red from the safety shades. Perhaps that can be done, but it will require training.

"At present gambling is being prohibited in Akron," comments the Beacon-Journal of that city—and the "at present" indicates lack of confidence in permanency of the venture.

The question is frequently asked: "How soon do you think the war will end?"—and the answer is: "Within one year after the United States begins turning plans into action."

A commander has been named for "the second Italian army"—which indicates there must be a first somewhere.

Emphasis Placed on Vital Factors

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—At a moment when Washington is reeking with reports about graft and big commissions on war contracts, the country should really appreciate the common sense of the senate special committee of which Harry S. Truman, of Missouri, is chairman, for stressing stupidity and inefficiency and waste in the war effort, and making no comment on graft whatever.

For the truth is that it is easy to demagogue about fat profits, graft, big commissions, manufacturers making fabulous profits while our boys are risking their lives, etc., but in the long run it is stupidity, waste and inefficiency which will cause too many of our boys to die. Graft, like burglary and murder, can be run down in most instances and punished. Big profits can be recaptured by corporation and individual income taxes.

But there is NO WAY tomorrow to recover what is lost today by stupidity, inefficiency and waste. Swollen profits, graft and big commissions merely mean that certain persons now own money which ought to be in the treasury.

Daily Bible Thought

Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near.—Isaiah 55:6.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I wish I had all the money I've spent foolishly on women. ... I'd spend it on that new girl down the street."

—a bookkeeping difference that can be rectified about as many times out of a hundred as any other sort of robbery is discovered and punished.

THE terribly important thing to realize, when the demagogues start shouting, is that in the one case LIVES are in danger. In the other only dollars, and dollars that very probably can be recovered either by taxation or by prosecution in the courts.

The sort of stupidity which WASTES the work of thousands of skilled mechanics, or prevents them from being diverted to some production which will be of value in the effort to beat the Nazis and the Japs—is a tragedy which may cost the lives of thousands of American boys by delaying our victory and thus prolonging the war. Compared with this the crookedness, or greed, of the manufacturer who makes a million dollars too much is trifling. The treasury will get two-thirds or more of that million back anyhow, and a suit after the war.

So hats off to Senator Truman and his associates for trying to stop stupidity and waste—which may cost lots of lives if continued—and not yielding to cheap demagoguery by screaming "Graft."

MIGHT recover the whole million, with no rebate for taxes paid!

BUT suppose the worst—suppose this greedy manufacturer gets away with it, but is doing a good job so far as our war production is concerned. Obviously that is immoral. It should be punished. But the only harm done is that he has made too much money. It has not caused any of our boys to be subjected to a Dunkirk without the proper weapons.

But waste, inefficiency and stupidity may cause our boys to face a Dunkirk. It may prolong the war not for a few months, but a year. It takes time to recover from losses suffered because of lack of proper tools for fighting. It is very little of a trick for a government to recover money which its citizens have acquired legally, much less illegally!

So hats off to Senator Truman and his associates for trying to stop stupidity and waste—which may cost lots of lives if continued—and not yielding to cheap demagoguery by screaming "Graft."

Great Progress In Industrial Surgery.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A SPECIALTY in medical practice which has made great strides in the past few years is that of industrial surgery. It was, of course, natural in a great industrial age that this should be so, but most people do not realize it. I believe, how specialized a department it is.

For instance, I find in the magazine which devotes itself to this specialty, Industrial Medicine, the following subjects listed as the ones which have received the largest amount of attention in the industrial field of medicine in the past few years: Dust, lead, silicosis, skin diseases, carbon monoxide, gases, eyes, ventilation, air conditioning, benzene, tuberculosis, workman's compensation and industrial hygiene. A subject which does not appear on this list, but which nevertheless takes up a great deal of the industrial surgeon's time, is burns.

I was especially impressed with the work of the industrial surgeon recently when I visited, with the surgeon in charge, one of the large U. S. ordnance plants that is being built. I never saw any one more alert and interested and full of his job, and with a more intelligent grasp of his problems and responsibilities.

Treatment of Burns. One thing that impressed me with the specialization in industrial surgery and also the common sense with which this young man met his problems was in a discussion of the subject of burns. He said that he had a number of burns which were both chemical and heat burns, and he had found out that unless you treat them as chemical burns first, they do not heal.

I asked him how he treated the chemical burns and he said that the first thing he wanted to find out was whether the chemical that did the burning was an acid or an alkali. If it was an acid, he taught the men to put baking soda solution on the burn immediately. If it was an alkali, he taught them to use vinegar and vinegar-soaked gauze on the burn as soon as possible.

Here was not only technical knowledge of the condition, but also the ability to get down to ordinary, every-day life in telling the workmen to use substances on which they could put their hands immediately to counteract the effect of a burn. In any kitchen they could get either baking soda or vinegar—one an alkali and the other an acid. He told me that he had seen some of these burns.

which if not treated for the chemical, remained open and sloughing for several months.

Preventive Medicine. As we drove over the plant, I found out that the young doctor was thinking about his job all the time and that he was thinking in terms of prevention. We passed two men who were working on a stalled caterpillar tractor and the doctor said, "I'll bet they haven't even got a first-aid kit with them."

He had a real man-sized job in educating the workers to take first-aid kits with them wherever they went and was teaching them how to apply emergency first-aid treatment under all conditions.

I went to the hospital and found that in putting up this plant, they had very sensibly created the first house first and the hospital second. It was a well-equipped hospital with all the equipment necessary for first-aid emergency treatment, and also for treatment of common ailments such as colds, sore throats and so forth.

The industrial surgeon does not observe union hours. By the time we got to the hospital, it was almost seven o'clock in the evening, but the doctor and the nurse were still on the job.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Deficit Worries Dem Committee, Jackson Day Dinners Ruled Out

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Recently, Democratic National Chairman Ed Flynn, Democratic National Treasurer Dick Reynolds and several other high Democratic officers had a private talk with the president on the sad state of the party's finances.

They told him that the Democratic national committee was over $600,000 in debt, from the 1940 third-term campaign, and was continuing to go deeper in the red at the rate of $5,000 a month. Also, that while he was lulling Democrats with soothing talk about political unity, the Republicans were quietly raising a big war chest and building up their fences in preparation for waging a slashing election battle this fall to capture control of congress.

The Democratic chiefs asked permission to stage a Jackson day dinner in Washington to help replenish the party's empty coffers.

In recent years, with a charge of $100 a plate, this traditional affair has been an important fund raiser. As much as $100,000 has been netted at one dinner. But last year, after nearly 1,000 tickets had been sold, Roosevelt ordered the dinner cancelled as a gesture of political unity.

Despite the urgent pleas of his political leaders, the president again turned thumbs down on a Jackson day banquet this year.

But he didn't turn them away entirely empty handed. To their request he offered a counter proposal—a series of private dinners where the party's affairs would be discussed and contributions solicited.

"I'll contribute $1,000 myself," he beamed.

Note: During the discussion, plain-talking Treasurer Reynolds, remarked: "This town is so cluttered up with Republican dollar-a-year men that a good Democrat can't get a job any more. The one way not to get a job around here is to admit you're a Democrat."

Bi-Party Dinner. THE president's plan for private dinners did not bring cheers from the party chiefs. Whereupon he produced two other suggestions.

One was that the Democrats and Republicans merge their Jackson day and Lincoln day dinners and hold a joint banquet, the proceeds to be divided equally between them. The other proposal was that the national committee of both parties be financed by an appropriation from congress.

The president's argument for this was that with the country at war it would be in the interest of national security to put the staffs of both national committees on the government payroll so that the two parties would not have to solicit funds from sources that might have a personal interest in the outcome of the forthcoming congressional elections.

Neither of the president's proposals got anywhere.

The Democratic leaders turned down the second as impractical. The Republicans declined to have anything to do with the first, the joint dinner plan.

They are making plans for a big Lincoln day rally to be held in Chicago, where the Martyred President was first nominated. GOP bigwigs from all over the country will attend, and the occasion will be the opening salvo in the party's political offensive this year.

Note: Despite the president's ban on a Jackson day dinner in Washington, Democratic organizations in some states will hold their own. Prominent among them is Iowa, where Democratic National Committeeman Frank Confort, State Chairman Jake More and ex-Governor Nels Kraschel insisted on a dinner on the ground in spite of the fact that government handouts and many other communications carry the line at top or bottom of the page. "Remember Pearl Harbor" it hasn't started to roll off the tongues around here like a good slogan should.

Oddly enough, the most frequently seen slogan in Washington is the least often repeated. There is hardly a government building that doesn't have somewhere prominently displayed in it, in letters one to three feet high, the slogan, "Time Is Short."

T. N. S. Shreveport, La.—Perhaps you haven't seen much about the decentralization of government agencies because, as I pointed out in a previous column, this is strictly a storm in the Washington teacup. Locally, it probably has resulted in more argument and absorbed more space in the capital newspapers than the price control bill.

The president has just put his foot down—and success who are objecting to the shift of 12 agencies involving about 10,000 workers.

The feeling of the administration is that with 1,000 new workers coming into the capital every week, and the estimate of the civil service commission BEFORE war broke out that hiring would go on at that rate at least until mid-summer, it's apparent that some drastic action has to be taken to accommodate the necessary war workers.

J. V. Santa Monica, Calif.—The only way that I know that you can assure yourself a hotel room on arrival in Washington is to get your reservation (about two weeks) in advance, make a substantial down payment on it and get a receipt from the hotel that such payment has been made. That's a contract.

Don't be too harsh on the hotel people, though. Suppose you had a hotel and a daily average of at least half again as many tenants as you could take care of many of them "big names" or big spenders or both?

He had met Marie-Aimee Lullin at dancing class. Her father objected to her marrying a blind man. "But he needs me now," she said, "and I'll never give him up." Her father produced other suitors—she ignored them. At 25—when she became of age—she led Francis Huber to the altar.

that the GOP has not adjourned politics and they saw no reason why the Democrats should "cut their own throats."

General Knudsen.

IN MOVING over to the war department as a spanking new lieutenant general, William Knudsen was given the ornate office of the secretary of war—which Secretary Stimson has refused to use. Stimson has insisted on remaining in the plain, rough-and-ready room he occupies in the nearby Munitions building.

But while assigned to the elaborate secretarial suite, Knudsen also doesn't plan to spend much time there.

The first day he set up shop there, several army chiefs dropped in and asked about his plans for an office force.

"There's my office force," said Knudsen with a big grin, pointing to a travelling bag. "I'm going to be out on the road, looking over plants and keeping things moving. That's my job and I won't need an office force for that."

Pal Joey.

BEHIND the scenes, one man who played a very influential part in swinging Pan-American delegates into line at the Rio conference was none other than Joe Stalin.

He was not present and his name was not mentioned but the Soviet boss played second fiddle to the dynamic diplomacy of Oswaldo Aranha and the persuasiveness of Sumner Welles.

How tough it was to line up some of the countries is illustrated by Peru, whose foreign minister at the last minute backed away from breaking relations with the Axis. Peru has a long Pacific coastline to defend and so worried over Japanese raiders. So finally Aranha and Welles put the squeeze on Peruvian Foreign Minister Solf Y. Muro, who is part German and secretly sympathetic with Franco.

They summoned Solf, together with Peruvian Ambassador Prado, who is the brother of the Peruvian president. Ambassador Prado is strongly anti-Axis and the two Peruvians had a row in front of Welles and Aranha. Finally, Prado, being the brother of the president, prevailed and it was agreed that Peru should break diplomatic relations. Helping to clinch the argument was a promise from Welles that the United States would protect Peru's Pacific coast.

Exhausted from the long argument, Welles left. As soon as the door closed behind him, Solf remarked, "Yes, and they also promised to protect the Philippines."

However, despite this crack, the two chief factors that convinced the delegates that Hitler could not win were: U. S. participation in the war and the continuing victories of the Russian armies. These were tangible realities that counted potentially in the final agreement.

A Farmer's Diary

Blind Bee Man

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

the habits of the bees might be studied at will.

Huber was an optimist. He minimized his blindness—often calling attention to beauties he did not see as if he saw them. He would compliment his friends upon their healthful appearance, or on the elegance of their gowns. This habit he had formed— to speak as if he saw—when the doctors first told him that he was going blind.

He wrote vividly—more vividly and accurately, perhaps, than if he had not had to use the eyes of his wife and his servant to get the information which he compiled into book form. He held his servant to painstaking work—sometimes the faithful fellow watched individual bees for 24 hours at a stretch without rest or food; at other times he caught, one by one, all the bees of a whole colony.

Such a trinity of devoted people is so rare that it has been used as theme of French poetry and for devotion, Francis Huber may drama. Because of this genius he was called the patron saint of bee keepers.

His name was Francis Huber—born at Geneva, Switzerland in 1750 of a brilliant and versatile family. His father, Jean Huber, was a poet, painter, musician, sculptor and natural historian—a friend of the witty philosopher, Voltaire. Francis inherited much of his father's graciousness and many of his aptitudes. He spent hours in a laboratory at an age when other boys had scarcely heard of science. He read French novels by dim lamps at night. When his parents took away the lamp, commanding him to sleep, he read by moonlight.

This ruined his health and threatened his eyesight when he was 15. A famous Paris doctor ordered him out on a farm to rest and regain his strength. He lived among the peasants and became physically strong again, except his eyes. When he went home, he knew that he was going blind. He could not much longer see his family or his sweetheart.

He had met Marie-Aimee Lullin at dancing class. Her father objected to her marrying a blind man. "But he needs me now," she said, "and I'll never give him up." Her father produced other suitors—she ignored them. At 25—when she became of age—she led Francis Huber to the altar.

Helen M. Britton Married In Church Ceremony At Galion

GALION—Open church was observed Saturday when Helen M. Britton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Britton of Galion, exchanged marriage vows with James Gerald Bonnar, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bonnar of Ashtabula, before the altar of Peace Lutheran church.

Rev. Philip E. Auer, pastor, read the single ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white slipper gown with sweetheart neckline and long train. The bridal gown was embroidered at the yoke in seed pearls and her finger-up length veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls.

She carried a handkerchief which her mother carried at her wedding. The bridal bouquet was of snow white roses.

Miss Britton's three sisters were her attendants. Hazel was maid of honor, wearing heather rose with a matching Juliet cap and carrying a yellow colonial bouquet. Mary Inez and Betty Britton were gowns of minuet blue and carried pink colonial bouquets. They also wore matching Juliet caps. The gowns of the three girls were fashioned alike, in faille. Each wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the bride.

Before the ceremony nuptial music was played by the church organist, Mrs. R. M. Pounder. Soloists were Mrs. James Robinson and Robert Tracht.

Mr. Bonnar's best man was Charles Tilton of Cleveland, a fraternity brother. Serving as ushers were Kenneth Petri, Eugene Ashmead, James Robinson, all of Galion, and Robert Bonnar of Oberlin college, brother of the bridegroom.

Altar decorations were wedge-wood, iris, lilies, white stock and pink gladioli, palms and tall white tapers in candelabra. Boyd Gifford and Andrew Plack served as altar boys.

Both mothers of the couple were dressed in blue, and had wire pink rosebud corsages.

The reception that followed the ceremony was held at the BeMiller home for 40 relatives and friends. Those serving were Josephine Tracht, Mrs. Robinson, Ruth Diamond, all of Galion, and Mrs. Karl Baker of Belmont, Mass.

When the couple return from a two weeks' wedding trip they will live at 137 South Jefferson street. For traveling, Mrs. Bonnar wore a black dressmaker suit trimmed in ermine.

Graduating from Galion high school, the bride recently resigned her position as receptionist at the Galion Metallic Vault company. She is a talented singer and member of Peace Lutheran choir.

Mr. Bonnar is an engineer, and is employed at the North Electric Manufacturing company. He was graduated from Ohio State university.

SCOUTS ADD 5,000 MORE BOOKS TO DONATIONS FOR SERVICE MEN

Mansfield Boy Scouts today had placed approximately 5,000 more books into the Mansfield Public Library as the result of their "mop-up" in the Victory Book campaign being waged nationally to obtain reading matter for the armed forces.

Approximately 250 Scouts worked from 9 a. m. until late Saturday afternoon making their second canvass of the city to gather up books which they were unable to collect on their first round.

The boys used their respective troop headquarters as a deposit station until they had completely canvassed their area using push carts, teddy wagons, market baskets and even large paper bags in which to carry the donations.

From troop headquarters the books were transported by truck to the library where the task of sorting, mending and packing will be handled by a committee headed by Mrs. Donald Black.

Collections Saturday raised Mansfield's book donations to between 7,000 and 8,000 although not all of the volumes can be used for library purposes. Books unsuitable for shipment because of their worn condition will be sold as waste paper and the money will be used to pay transportation charges. Enough funds from the first collection were obtained through the sale of worn volumes to pay freight charges for the initial shipment.

The need for strong paste board cartons and heavy cord was expressed by Miss Lois MacKellar, county chairman, who said that all boxes originally given to the library for shipping had been used. People having boxes are asked to notify the library.

CHAPTER XVII

Seated in the hotel lobby, Diane saw a slim, lovely girl approaching. She was wearing a smart, black suit, her curls peeping from beneath a chic hat, and silver fox furs cascading over one arm. For a moment Diane hesitated, wondering whether this smartly-dressed, assured young woman could be the timid, shabby girl she had once befriended. She had heard from many sources that Linda had changed, and yet—

Linda, walking across the room, caught sight of Diane, and forced a smile. That smile, half-doubtful, half-wistful made the artist certain this was Linda, and instantly she was on her feet, hands extended in a gracious welcome.

"Linda! I'm so glad to see you!" "I came to apologize for everything I've done," Linda said. These were the words she had thought she never would be able to say, and now that she had, Linda felt relieved. At last the barrier was down.

Seated in the dimly-lighted dining-room, the girls eyed each other.

"How good it is to be with you again," Linda said. "I—I wanted to apologize long ago, but—" she reddened. "I—just didn't."

"That's all right," Diane shrugged.

ged. "Let's forget it." "But I don't want to forget it," Linda's face was serious. "We've evaded things too long now, and I don't want to leave here until all our differences are ironed and we're the good friends we used to be."

"I want you to know how sorry I am for the nasty things I said. I was so hurt, so bewildered that I didn't know what I was saying that miserable night, but when I had time to reason things out, I knew you were not to blame. It made me miserably unhappy, but my pride kept me from admitting I had been wrong."

"I hoped you would understand that I really was your friend," Diane answered.

"It was an unfortunate business all the way around."

"Then—you'll forgive me?" "Of course, Linda."

They were silent for a while before Diane said calmly: "And what about Steve?"

Linda looked up in surprise. "Steve?"

Diane nodded. "I've a hunch you married him only because life seemed like a mess and you wouldn't swallow your pride and go home," she said bluntly.

Linda hesitated, feeling a surge of anger at Diane's statement.

Despite their renewed friendship, she felt the artist had overstepped her grounds in accusing her, however just that accusation might be. Her first duty was toward Steve, and she could not bare their secret.

"You're mistaken," she said shortly. "Steve and I are very happy."

Diane's eyes dropped to her plate. She had felt the slight rebuff, and yet for a split second there had been pain and doubt in Linda's honest eyes. By way of conversation to cover the sudden, awkward silence, she murmured casually:

"I must congratulate Steve on his book. I understand it's an overwhelming success."

"Oh yes," Linda was pleased to have their conversation on safer ground. "Steve flew to New York last night to meet his publisher. They're already going over plans for another printing."

"Why you poor kid! Aren't you lonesome alone in the country?" "I've quite a lot to do," Linda replied evasively. "You see, as Steve's secretary, I take care of his correspondence."

"Sort of an office wife I presume?" Diane's words held no malice, but they were so near the truth that Linda started, her face coloring. The artist had missed no part of the effect her words had on her companion, but she went on hastily:

"Are you planning to stay on the farm another Winter?"

Linda's eyes glowed with happiness. "We've rented an apartment here in Chicago for a few months. It's hard to get back and forth to the country in bad weather, and now that the book is such a success Steve will have to spend much time here. But we'll keep the farm open and spend week-ends there."

"Sounds idyllic," Diane commented, and Linda knew such plans would sound dull to a person like Diane who craved continuous excitement. Linda had to laugh at herself, remembering how she had once dreamed of living on a perpetual merry-go-round of thrills.

"By the way," Diane said coolly, "since you're so full of news, I've some for you. I heard from Greg this morning. He's coming home next week."

The color which stained Linda's face and neck betrayed her emotions. In stunned silence she sat, watching Diane.

Diane pretended not to notice. She busied herself lighting a cigarette. "He's been doing marvelous work in South America, according to his letter, and I understand he is coming only for a short vacation. We must all get together and welcome him home."

There was a roaring in Linda's ears. She felt sick and dizzy, and her only thought was to escape from Diane's shrewd eyes—to escape to the peace and blessed forgetfulness the farm offered. Linda forced a smile to her lips, forced her voice to be as casual as Diane's had been.

"I think," she said lightly, "that's a grand idea."

Driving back to the farm, Linda's joy at being once more on a friendly basis with Diane was overshadowed by a new and nameless fear.

What would it mean to face Greg Hollister again as Steve Baridon's wife? How would it affect the lives of Steve, of Diane, and—most importantly—of Greg, himself?

Wooster, Mt. Union Top Race

Two Leaders Will Meet Feb. 18 For State Lead.

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS—(AP)—Put a big red ring around "Wednesday, Feb. 18" on your calendar—that looks like the day Ohio's college basketball teams will decide the state championship.

That's the day Wooster's mighty Scots, boasting nine wins in 10 starts, are booked to invade Alliance for a tilt with Mount Union's current leaders of both the state and Ohio conference races, and defending champions in both sectors.

The Mounts, rolling along with 10 victories, a 57.4 offensive average, and a 38.3 defensive mark, appear to have fairly easy sailing the rest of the way, except for Wooster. The Scots have a 55.1 scoring average and boast the state's best defensive record—33.9.

Should Wooster upset the Mounts, indications are the title might go to Toledo's rampaging Rockets, who have lost only to Marshall in 15 starts.

Just how easy the road ahead looms for the Woosters and the Mounts—outside of their Feb. 18 meeting—is shown by the record. Wooster meets Wilmington, Wittenberg, Fenn, Case, Denison, Kenyon, Hiram, Oberlin and Muskingum, and that contingent has won only 21 of 63 games.

Mount Union will battle Otterbein, Hiram, Muskingum, Kent State, Marietta, Oberlin and Kenyon, that group having won only 20 of 58 starts. Capital, Mount Union's only mate in the "clean" sector, must push aside Ohio Northern twice, along with Marietta, Denison, Bowling Green, Otterbein, Kenyon and Heidelberg—and the once-beaten Polar Bears are expected to take at least one of the two games.

With mid-year examinations up, this week, the basketballers are slated to spend more time on their books, but here's the schedule.

Monday: Chicago at Ohio State; Tuesday: Youngstown at Akron; Giffin at Ohio Northern.

Wednesday: Cincinnati at Wilmington, Mexico "Y" at Bluffton; Thursday: Heidelberg at Bowling Green.

Friday: Capital at Marietta, Findlay at Ohio Northern, John Carroll at Akron, Wilmington at Wooster, Cedarville at Giffin.

Saturday: Purdue at Ohio State; Bowling Green at Oberlin, Mount Union at Otterbein, Muskingum at Case, Findlay at Heidelberg, Wooster at Wittenberg, Ohio Wesleyan at Baldwin Wallace, Youngstown at Dayton, Alumni at Bluffton, Cedarville at Indiana Tech, Ohio U. at Cincinnati, Westminster at Toledo, Marietta at Fenn and Great Lakes Naval Training at John Carroll.

Purdue Plays Minnesota

Teams Battle For Second Place In Big Ten Race.

CHICAGO—(AP)—When Purdue's basketball team was last in action, it dropped a 40-39 decision to Indiana for its first loss of the year. Tonight the Boilermakers expect as stiff a battle when they tangle with Minnesota for second place in the Big Ten race.

The resumption of activity at Lafayette will give Purdue a chance of staying close behind the leading, undefeated Illinois, provided the Boilermakers defeat Minnesota. A Gopher victory will restore Minnesota to second place but both teams will then have two defeats and their hopes of catching up to the leaders will depend on the Illinois getting whipped twice.

Tonight's other two games involve the four lowest teams. Last place Chicago will play at Columbus against eight-place Ohio State. Michigan, in ninth, will play at Indiana, which is in seventh.

Illinois repelled Minnesota Saturday night 49-36. Wisconsin rolled up its fourth straight victory Saturday, downing Indiana 42-36. Michigan won its second conference engagement, 53 to 39, over Ohio State. It was the Buckeyes' fourth defeat.

Honors for the lowest score went to a home town boy and former amateur champion, long since made good in the professional ranks. Lawson Little carded a 34-35—69 against the par of 36-36—72. It gave him a second place tie with Harry Bassler, stocky Californian from Los Altos, who had two rounds of 70 for his 140.

The field was cut to the low 51 pros and 11 amateurs after the second round.

Ohio Conference Managers Pave Way For Use Of Frosh

By REX HESS
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

Ohio Conference managers, meeting yesterday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, paved the way for possible use of freshmen in Ohio college athletic competition next fall, and adopted a resolution favoring a proposed banquet to be given by the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce for outstanding Ohio high school athletes.

Making it clear that any use that may be made of freshman athletes would be for the duration of the war only, the managers appointed a committee to study the problem and report its recommendations at the regular meeting of the conference at Oberlin May 16.

Ordinarily any recommendations made by the managers committee are adopted by the conference as a whole, since the managers for the most part are college athletic directors who each have one vote in conference meetings, the cast by the faculty representatives.

Ashland already has cancelled its football schedule for next fall, while several other smaller conference schools indicated they might have to take the same action unless they were able to use freshmen.

The wartime speedup in educational programs at many colleges, in which college degrees will be awarded in three and a half years, or less, also makes use of freshman athletes more necessary than ever at this time.

The conference may follow the recently adopted Missouri Valley conference rule on freshmen, which seeks to curb the use of "tramp" athletes by making transfer students complete a year in residence before they become eligible, and setting a high grade average which must be maintained by athletes.

Named on the managers committee to study the freshman problem are: Walter J. Livingston of Denison, Harry Ockerman of Bowling Green, Bill Bernholz of Capital, Ray Ride of Case, L. C. Boles of Wooster, John Van Why of Wittenberg and J. H. Nichols of Oberlin.

The regular conference meeting will be held at the same time as the "Big Six" track meet at Oberlin, which was moved up yesterday from May 23-24 to May 15-16. It was decided to hold the first day's preliminary events of the track meet as a twilight affair.

Other changes in spring schedules decided upon yesterday in order to meet early commencement at Ohio colleges this year, moved the conference tennis tournament from Kenyon on May 23 to Oberlin on May 16, while the golf tournament at Alliance Country club was rescheduled for May 15.

Disapproval of the high school athletic banquet was expressed in a resolution adopted at the suggestion of George Daniel of Lorain, conference commissioner. While the faculty managers' authority is confined to schedule-making, their recommendations usually are adopted by the conference of 20 colleges.

The banquet had been proposed by the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, and some of the conference coaches had been invited.

Daniel read a letter from H. R. Townsend, state high school athletic commissioner, opposing the entertainment, then remarked: "We cannot support this sort of venture as it certainly is a form of proselytizing and that's what we've been fighting for years."

TAM O'SHANTER OPEN TO BE PLAYED JULY 16

Gadget To Aid Reds' Batting

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Not that it's anything new in baseball but the Cincinnati Reds are taking an indefatigable extra player with them to the Tampa training camp next month.

It's a pitching machine like the one the St. Louis Cardinals tried out a couple of years ago, and it demonstrates the lengths a ball club will go to in an effort to make the hitters hit.

The ponderous gadget's only drawback is that it is strictly a right-hander and a good number of the Reds' batters of 1941 were alleged to be allergic to left-handed pitching. A flesh and blood left-hander will have to drill them.

Otherwise, the machine can be aimed to give a batter hours on end of practice in swinging at his weakness, be it a high one on the inside or a slow one straight down the avenue.

Considering that the Reds' collective batting average of last year was second worst in the National league, the front office is expecting that the machine will get plenty of chances to show its versatility.

Westies Meet City Newsies

Supremacy of City 'A' Loop Hangs at Stake.

Mansfield Athletic Supplies will tangle with the City Newsies tomorrow night in the Senior high school gym for first place supremacy in the City "A" league.

Leading the pack, the Supplies can salt down a sure claim for at least a tie for first in the second half of the race. The Newsies could move into a tie with the Supplies should they win.

First game on the card, starting at 7 p. m., will find the Westinghouse Electric and the Blue Goose Sohioans fighting it out for a chance to stay in the race.

The winner in this match will remain in a challenging position while the loser will automatically be dropped from further championship consideration.

In the other loop game the Yunker Sports and the Ohio Public Service play off the collar sport. Both teams are now there in the standings.

DEFENSE WORKERS NEEDED!

Beginning on Monday, February 9, a sixteen week course, financed by the United States Government, will be given at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, Ohio, to train Laboratory Technicians for the Plumbrook Ordnance Plant near Sandusky.

SCOPE AND EXPENSE OF COURSE

The course will consist of a thorough training in Chemistry supplemented by training in Physics, both the equivalent in most respects of the basic college courses in Chemistry and Physics. The course will require the full time of a student. His only expense will be for books and, if he does not live at home, for room and board.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

Applicants must be graduates of high schools with one year of Chemistry, Algebra and Geometry. They must rank in the upper fourth of their class or in lieu thereof, have done exceptional work in the sciences. Young men out of high school several years are not disqualified; in fact, their experience and maturity are real assets.

EMPLOYMENT AND MILITARY DEFERMENT

Employment with good pay is practically assured to those who finish the course satisfactorily. While no guarantee can be made as to military deferment, technicians in the Plumbrook Plant up to the present time have been deferred without exception as essential to national defense.

Representatives of Heidelberg College will be at Mansfield High School Vocational Office (rear entrance) on Tuesday evening, January 27 from 7 to 9 o'clock to receive applications or give additional information.

CHILD OUTLAWS WORRY BRITAIN

Psychologist Blames Parents For English Children's Waywardness.

(By United Press)
LONDON — Blame for the spreading menace of "child outlaws" in large British cities is placed on the doorstep of English parents by Miss M. I. Dunson, psychologist.

According to Miss Dunson, infant criminals like 13-year-old "Baby Face" John of London are produced by adults. She says many English families do not take enough care of their children. They have never thought of the problem of youth, she says, and they can't be bothered to rear their offspring in a proper manner.

Bitten with war wanderlust, child outlaws are roaming the English countryside defying the law in every big city. Scores of these boys from London, Manchester, Liverpool and Cardiff know all the "hideouts." And they are creating a knotty problem for the social workers of Britain.

Miss Dunson argues that most of the child-outlaws come from those school children who are not backward enough to be classed as mentally defective. She suggests that, wearying of trying to earn praise from their teachers, these children decide to seek the adulation of their own friends — by standing out against the law.

"Baby Face" John, for instance, has been "on the run" from the law since the day he appeared in juvenile court. While waiting for the magistrate to arrive, he slipped out of the court and disappeared into the crowds of London.

London police are on the lookout for John but their chances of catching him appear slim. For it isn't difficult for a boy who will not work hard for his keep to find odd jobs. There usually is someone who will take advantage of cheap labor.

British social workers realize the cause of this wanderlust which has affected boys like John. They recognize that it is almost inevitable that children cannot be transferred from their homes "without some general unsettling effect."

But they feel confident that the wanderers eventually will settle down and that it would be fatal to brand such boys as "no goods" or real "Dead End Kids."

NAPS IN AUTO

CONCORD, N. H. — Gov. Robert O. Blood of New Hampshire has devised a novel means of insuring eight hours sleep a night in the face of a crowded official schedule.

The governor, who also is a physician, has had a hinged board attached to the rear seat of his auto. Blankets and pillows are spread over the board and the governor reports that he sleeps like a top enroute to and from dinners and dedications in distant parts of the state.

CADET CLASS OF ONE
BEAUMONT, Tex. — Gov. Charles F. Hawkins took a pretty good flight when he finishes his army flight training because he is going to get plenty of individual instruction. Young Hawkins was the "entire flying cadet class" when Ellington Field, Houston, Tex., opened its first flying class since World war days.

"Typical Students" In Error.
DELAWARE, O. — Wesleyan University selected the wrong "typical" students when preparing a picture booklet on the university. The photos were taken last spring. The front cover of the booklet shows a girl who has since "flunked out" of school and a boy who has transferred to Case college, Cleveland.

Be Quick To Treat

Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechnut creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

PEMBROKE, N. Y. (U.P.)—The enterprising father-son apiarist team of John N. and Jourdain DeMuth is at it again—speeding bees to sunny climes.

There is no rest for the DeMuths during the winter months. Buzzing wards. They must live up to their reputation of being "busy as a bee," and produce honey both winter and summer.

This is the tenth year that father and son have headed South with their beehives. Their winter base is Unatilla, Fla.
